Guess Who

I was born in Scotland. I was only 6 days old when my father died and was his only surviving legitimate child. I was crowned Queen at 9 months old.

The King of England had plans for me but the French helped to change those plans. When I was 15, I married the Dauphin of France. When his father died, I was Queen of France for a short time. My husband died two years later. Two years after that I married my cousin. Our son James was born in 1566. In 1567, an explosion at our house resulted in finding my husband dead in the garden.

Shortly, I married Bothwell, who was believed to be my previous husband's murderer. I was imprisoned and forced to abdicate to my one year old son. I managed to escape and thought my cousin would help me so I travelled to England. She had me arrested because I was a threat to the throne of England.

I was in custody for 19 years before being tried, convicted of treason and executed. It took 2 swings of the axe after which the executioner held up my head to the crowd revealing that my beautiful red hair was a wig.

At one time, I claimed the crowns of Scotland, France, England, and Ireland. Although I never met this cousin in life, we now rest side by side at Westminster Abbey.

Who Am I?
