Featured Article Guess Who

I was born in Margam, Port Talbot, Wales in 1937. I am considered to be one of film's greatest living actors. Richard Burton encouraged me to become an actor at the age of 15. I became an understudy for Laurence Olivier in 1965.

After years of working in theatre, I finally broke into film. I am renowned for my preparation for roles and am able to transform my Welsh accent to mimic any other accent required for my character. I have played some historical figures including Richard Lionheart, Adolph Hitler, and Richard Nixon. I have also played many famous fictional characters including Othello, Quasimodo, Abraham Van Helsing, Zorro, and Titus Andronicus.

My most famous role as a Doctor won me an Oscar Award for Best Actor in 1992. I celebrated in Silence with a nice Chianti. I only appeared on screen for 24 minutes in the whole film, but the performance was memorable and led to me reprising the role 2 more times in 2001 and 2002. This character was labeled by the American Film Institute as the number one film villain.

Some of the actors I have worked with include Katharine
